References

[1] Michael H. Albert, Alexander Golynski, Angèle M. Hamel, Alejandro López-Ortiz, S. Srinivasa Rao, and Mohammad Ali Safari. Longest increasing subsequences in sliding windows. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):405–414, 2004.

[2] Michael A. Bender and M. Martín Farach-Colton. The level ancestor problem simplified. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(1):5–12, 2004.

[3] Claudson F. Bornstein and Santosh Vempala. Flow metrics. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(1):13–24, 2004.

[4] Patricia Bouyer, Catherine Dufourd, Emmanuel Fleury, and Antoine Petit. Updatable timed automata. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):291–345, 2004.

[5] Hervé Brönnimann, John Iacono, Jyrki Katajainen, Pat Morin, Jason Morrison, and Godfried Toussaint. Space-efficient planar convex hull algorithm. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(1):25–40, 2004.

[6] R. Carmo, J. Donadelli, Y. Kohayakawa, and E. Laber. Searching in random partially ordered sets. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(1):41–57, 2004.

[7] Matteo Cavaliere and Peter Leupold. Evolution and observation — a non-standard way to generate formal languages. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):233–248, 2004.

[8] Dong Pyo Chi and DoYong Kwon. Sturmian words, β-shifts, and transcendence. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):395–404, 2004.

[9] Rodney G. Downey, Evan J. Griffiths, and Stephanie Reid. On kurtz randomness. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):249–270, 2004.

[10] Juan Luis Esteban, Nicola Galesi, and Jochen Messner. On the complexity of resolution with bounded conjunctions. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):347–370, 2004.

[11] Theodoulos Garefalakis. The generalized weil pairing and the discrete logarithm problem on elliptic curves. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(1):59–72, 2004.

[12] Alejandro Hevia and Marcos Kiwi. Electronic jury voting protocols. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(1):73–94, 2004.

[13] Jason J. Holdsworth. Graph traversal and graph transformation. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):215–231, 2004.

[14] Martin Klazar. On the least exponential growth admitting uncountably many closed permutation classes. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):271–281, 2004.

[15] Keqin Li. Analysis of randomized load distribution for reproduction trees in linear arrays and rings. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):195–214, 2004.

[16] S. Muthukrishnan and S. Cenk Sahinalp. An efficient algorithm for sequence comparison with block reversals. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(1):95–101, 2004.

[17] Gonzalo Navarro and Kimmo Fredriksson. Average complexity of exact and approximate multiple string matching. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):283–290, 2004.

[18] Richard Nock and Frank Nielsen. On domain-partitioning induction criteria: Worst-case bounds for the worst-case based. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):371–382, 2004.

[19] B. Ravikumar. Peg-solitaire, string rewriting systems and finite automata. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):383–394, 2004.

[20] Cláudia Linhares Sales and Frédéric Maffray. On dart-free perfectly contractile graphs. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):171–194, 2004.

[21] Hadas Shachnai and Tami Tamir. Tight bounds for online class-constrained packing. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(1):103–123, 2004.

[22] Brett Stevens and Eric Mendelsohn. Packing arrays. Theor. Computut. Sci., 321(1):125–148, 2004.

[23] Mario Szegedy and Xiaomin Chen. Computing boolean functions from multiple faulty copies of input bits. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(1):149–170, 2004.

[24] Gerhard J. Woeginger. Seventeen lines and one-hundred-and-one points. Theor. Comput. Sci., 321(2-3):415–421, 2004.